Lincoln Eccentric About Beard.
In the matter of beards, as in everything else, Abraham Lincoln retained an open mind. He was not above liking change for his own sake, monotony weighing him.

In 1853 Lincoln wore a beard.
In 1857 and 1858 he was beardless.
During the debate with Douglas he was growing a beard.

The day after his first nomination
the beard was gone.

Portraits of 1861, 1863, and 1864
show the full beard, but before 1864
was ended the Lincoln face was smooth again. The last portrait, made on April 9, 1865, shows the fair
beginning of a beard.

The "Perilous Passage"

Oakland, Cal., April 24

Mr. W. L. Overstreet,
Editor, Carmel Pine Cone.

My dear sir:

I have read with interest frequent items in your columns urging the people of Carmel to patronize our own merchants. I believe in that on principle myself, and feel that our own stores should receive our trade as far as possible.

But as the driver of a car may say that in the present state of Ocean Avenue and the crossing of the streets leading into it, even with gasoline as high and as scarce as it is, the smooth highway to Monterey appeals to most of us as safer and more satisfactory than any detour upon the Perilous Passage of our main street.

How much should I give to make this a better world?

A CERTAIN man in New York filled out his income tax report.

It showed an income so large that his tax was 53%. And his total gifts to church and charity for the year were $148.

Think of it—thousands spent for luxuries and pleasure for himself, and $148 to leave the world a little better than he found it!

Most of us do better than that; but not so very much better.

Our average daily gift for all church causes is

- less than we spend for daily papers
- less than a local telephone call
- less than a third of the day's car fare
- less than 3 cents a day

No wonder that 80% of the ministers of America are paid less than $20 a week. No wonder that the church hospitals turn away thousands of sick people a year. No wonder that China has only one doctor for every 400,000 people. No wonder that every church board and charity society is forever meeting deficits, forever passing the hat.

It isn't because we are selfish; it isn't because we don't want to help. It's just because no one has ever put up a great big program to us, and asked us to think of the work of the church in a systematic businesslike way.

The Interchurch World Movement represents the united program of thirty denominations. They have surveyed their whole task, no business could have done it better.

They have budgeted their needs; no business could have a more scientific budget. They have united to prevent the possibility of waste and duplication. At least a million dollars will be saved by the fact that thirty individual campaigns are joined in one united effort.

And they come to the men or women who love America—to you—this week asking you to use them as the channel through which a certain definite part of your income can be applied to make this a better world.

Only you can determine what part of your income that should be.

It's a good time right now to answer that question. We're passing through the world just once; how much better will the world be because you passed through?
